Keep It Spicy – Capsaicin for Treatment of Cannabis Hyperemesis Syndrome

Session Date: 02/15/2022

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Cannabis legalization, both medical and recreational use, has increased use of cannabis across the United States. Research has shown that cannabinoids have a therapeutic effect on nausea and vomiting associated with chemotherapy. However, in some patients, chronic use of cannabis has been associated with cyclic episodes of nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain which resolve with cessation. These cyclic episodes are typically also associated with pathologic bathing behavior and are often unmanaged and untreated by traditional antiemetic regimens. This presentation will review cannabis hyperemesis syndrome pathophysiology, clinical features, and treatments options, with a focus on the most recent literature regarding the use of topical capsaicin.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Discuss pathophysiology of cannabis hyperemesis syndrome (CHS).
2. Identify clinical features and ROME IV criteria associated with CHS.
3. Review treatment options for CHS.
