Long Acting Lipoglycopeptides: Antibiotic Friend or Foe?

Session Date: 05/10/2022

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Dalbavancin and oritavancin are long acting lipoglycopeptides FDA-approved for the treatment of acute bacterial skin and skin structure infections (ABSSSI) with a single dose. The unique pharmacology and drug characteristics of these agents have led to expanded interest in off-label treatment of deep seeded endovascular and osteo-articular infections that have historically required daily parenteral antibiotics for extended durations. This presentation will discuss the differences between dalbavancin and oritavancin and review literature describing the efficacy, safety, and cost-considerations of lipoglycopeptide use.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Review the pharmacology and drug characteristics of dalbavancin and oritavancin.
2. Describe current literature assessing the safety and efficacy of FDA approved and off-label indications for lipoglycopeptide use in clinical practice.
3. Discuss pharmacoeconomic implications of lipoglycopeptide use in clinical practice.
