Level Up: Updates on Direct Oral Anticoagulant Plasma Levels

Session Date: 05/24/2022

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Direct oral anticoagulants (DOACs) have exhibited predictable pharmacokinetic and pharmacodynamic profiles in phase III clinical trials. As a result, routine plasma level monitoring is not required. However, post-marking studies of real-world patients continue to illustrate a wide variability in DOAC plasma levels compared to those identified in the original landmark studies. With the growing use of DOACs in special patient populations, the question of whether this variability in plasma levels correlates to poorer clinical outcomes comes to the forefront. This presentation will explore the concept of DOAC plasma level monitoring and discuss appropriate utilization and interpretation of DOAC plasma levels to guide evidence-based clinical decision making.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

- 1) Describe laboratory tests used to estimate DOAC plasma levels
- 2) Review current literature exploring the association between DOAC plasma levels and clinical outcomes
- 3) Outline appropriate utilization and interpretation of DOAC plasma levels in clinical practice
