Put on Your Thinking CAP: Steroid Use in Community-Acquired Pneumonia?

Session Date: 11/15/2022

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Community-acquired pneumonia is a commonly seen infection with an estimated 1.5 million hospitalizations annually. In addition, the World Health Organization reported that lower respiratory infections were the 4th leading cause of death globally in 2019. The possible benefit of steroid use in pneumonia has been questioned by researchers for over 50 years as steroids may decrease systemic inflammatory response to infection and reduce organ dysfunction. This presentation will review literature regarding steroid use in non-severe and severe community-acquired pneumonia, discussing both efficacy and safety outcomes reported in the literature.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Explain the pharmacological mechanism of steroid use in community-acquired pneumonia treatment
2. Interpret literature assessing use of steroids in management of community-acquired pneumonia
3. Relate efficacy and safety outcomes of steroids in community-acquired pneumonia to a patient case
