The Intensive Approach: Updates for Blood Pressure Control in Intracerebral Hemorrhage

Session Date: 08/22/2023

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Intracerebral hemorrhage (ICH) as a result of a hemorrhagic stroke can be a catastrophic complication, which is associated with significant morbidity and mortality. Lowering blood pressure to prevent hematoma expansion in the acute period following ICH is a mainstay of treatment. However, there remains a clinical debate on the optimal blood pressure target as studies have examined blood pressure targets from <140 mmHg to <180 mmHg. This presentation will review the pathophysiology of ICH and risk factors associated with poor neurologic outcomes. Discussion will include a review of the current guidelines, prior literature, and the results of the INTERACT-3 trial. Audience members will then be asked to develop recommendations for acute blood pressure management in ICH.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Describe pathophysiology of intracerebral hemorrhage and risk factors associated with poor outcomes.
2. Compare the results of the INTERACT-3 trial to the current guidelines and supporting literature.
3. Develop recommendations for the acute blood pressure management in a patient with intracerebral hemorrhage.
