STATIN INTOLERANCE AND CLEAR ALTERNATIVES

Session Date: 10/03/2023

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Atherosclerotic cardiovascular disease (ASCVD) stands as the foremost cause of global mortality. Statin intolerance represents a significant impediment in delivering optimal healthcare to individuals afflicted with ASCVD or harboring substantial risk. In 2014, the National Lipid Association was the first major organization to provide a working definition of statin intolerance with various other organizations providing their interpretations of statin intolerance shortly after. In 2022, the National Lipid Association provided an updated scientific statement revising the definition of statin tolerance with a clear distinction of two categories: partial and complete intolerance. The statement provides guidance on identification, management, and investigation of statin intolerance. This presentation aims to examine the updated definition of statin intolerance, diverse strategies for managing this syndrome, the clinical trials supporting alternative agents, and how to use these agents in clinical practice.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Recognize the National Lipid Association updated definition of statin intolerance.
2. Describe management strategies for statin-intolerant patients.
3. Identify the role of PCSK-9 inhibitors, Inclisiran, and Bempedoic acid in statin-intolerant patients.
