Don't Get Spooked: Infectious Risk with Advanced Therapies in Inflammatory Bowel Disease

Session Date: 10/31/2023

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) is associated with significant morbidity, high burden of hospitalization, surgery, and need for corticosteroids and advanced therapies and/or immunosuppressive agents in a subset of patients with moderately to severely active disease. It is estimated that high-need, high-cost patients with IBD spend approximately 3.7 days in the hospital per month, and serious infections are one of the leading causes of hospitalization. Both underlying active disease, as well as treatment with immunosuppressive therapy, contributes to an increased risk of serious and opportunistic infections in these patients. This presentation will explain the hierarchy of infectious risk amongst the advanced IBD therapies by reviewing the safety data of each biologic and small molecule drug. In addition, this presentation will discuss recommended strategies for the prevention of infection in patients treated with advanced IBD therapies.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Describe the pathophysiology and current treatment options for inflammatory bowel disease (IBD).
2. Explain the hierarchy of infectious risk amongst advanced IBD therapies.
3. Create a plan utilizing prevention strategies prior to initiation and during treatment with advanced IBD therapies.
